
Your current policy may not cover this type of incident, but Fireman's Fund® does.

You've hired a third-party developer to create a fight segment for a video game based on a major movie scheduled to release next month. The lead has a $10 million contract to film the motion-capturing components for the video game. At day two of filming, you get the call that the actor was involved in a boating accident. He won't be able to work for at least six weeks; meanwhile, expenses for the crew, equipment, and monthly facility rental charges continue to add up. Are you covered?

Our Heritage

Fireman's Fund was founded nearly 150 years ago with a mission to donate a portion of our profits to support the families of firefighters. For more information, please visit our Web site at www.firemansfund.com/heritage.

Fireman's Fund® Introducing the Ultimate in Risk Protection

From simple kids' video games to Web- or computer-based simulated reality programs to entertainment developed for high-profile Wii or Xbox platforms, Fireman's Fund provides insurance solutions that enable publishers, designers, developers, and their teams to create the ultimate gaming experience.

Basic Coverages

Whether it's simple coverage for a home-based business or more complex protection for a larger commercial operation, we can custom-tailor a package that's right for you:

- Property
- General liability
- Automotive
- Workers' compensation
- Umbrella

Specialty Coverages

We can insure your video game development project in the same way we protect directors, actors, and crew on a movie set. Designed in consultation with developers and publishers in your industry, our program includes special provisions for:

- Key person coverage
- Media Professional Liability
- Props, sets, and wardrobe
- Extra expense
- Third-party property damage
- Equipment
- Negative film or faulty stock

And if you need a completion guaranty, our International Film Guarantors (IFG) business unit can provide bonds that are accepted by the leading entertainment banks and financial institutions.

Everything Under the Firehat

Experience and Scope – For more than 80 consecutive years, Fireman's Fund® has insured some of the biggest and most successful productions in the entertainment industry, including The Lord of the Rings, Spartacus, and Apocalypse Now. Along with film, we provide coverage for a variety of industry-related ventures. Whether you're an independent filmmaker in New York, a touring musician, or own a small recording studio in Texas, whether you're on location with A-list actors in Paris and London, or in production on a prime-time television series in your own back yard, we can tailor coverages, limits, and terms to match your exposures, and your dreams.

Financial Strength – Fireman's Fund is one of the premier property/casualty insurers in the U.S., and a proud member of Allianz SE, a worldwide financial services leader. We can offer high limits and routinely insure a wide range of entertainment-related projects worldwide, with production costs over $200 million.

Specialized Resources – Whether it's underwriting, loss prevention services, audit or claims support, special teams are trained to help you manage your business. And we're the only carrier with dedicated adjusters for claims involving video game production and development.

If you don't have Fireman's Fund® insurance, you don't have complete protection.

A major motion picture studio hired you to create a segment for the video game version of a soon-to-be-released blockbuster. You've spent the last three and half weeks developing the car crash scene. Two days prior to your delivery date, your computer, its back-up system, and $20,000 worth of work is destroyed by a fire in your house. You beg the studio for an extension; they agree to just two weeks. Now you must pay a freelance developer $12,000 to help you recreate the work you lost. In the end, you'll have worked over a month only to collect less than a week's worth of salary. Will your current insurance carrier cover you for your loss?
